Build Teams

The heart of Tournament Manager is its ability to build teams. Teams can be built manually or automatically. Tournament Manager builds any number of golfers per team – 2-, 3-, 4-, 5-, 6-, 7-, and 8-somes.

- Many pairing options! Tournament Manager can consider one, many, or all of the following parameters when building x-somes: Handicaps, Flights, Groups, Gender, Cart/Walk, and/or Preferred tee time. Select the appropriate pairing options and Tournament Manager will build your teams and schedule automatically. For example, you could make Tournament Manager put 2 men and 2 women in each foursome, each from a different club (group), pure with respect to walk/ride, considering each golfer's preferred tee time, trying to balance each foursome A,B,C,D - while trying to maintain equal team handicaps - while making sure that each successive event each golfer does not

"The handicapping and tournament management software has greatly reduced sandbagging and also allowed our club to easily administer a variety of different games and events. As a result, our membership has nearly doubled in the four years we've been using these systems."

- Ryan Kelly,
Bonneville Men's Association

have the same partners. It would take days to do manually. Tournament Manager does it in a matter of seconds.

- Up to 9 grouping fields available. Use the group field to make Tournament Manager handle complex pairings. Example: Assume you're running a tournament with 100 golfers. 25 are professionals and the other 75 amateurs. You want to calculate 25 equal foursomes with one professional per foursome and the remaining three amateurs. Place all professionals in group 1, and all amateurs in group 2. Then mark "Balance Groups" and calculate pairings. Tournament Manager will assure that one professional appears in each foursome....while maintaining any other options you set.
- Tournament Manager can build x-somes considering gender, cart/walk preference, and preferred tee times. Tournament Manager even has an option to automatically avoid pairing husbands and wives together.

Many calculation modes:

Equal x-somes: Calculates x-somes with total group handicaps as close as possible for each x-some.

Balanced x-somes: Calculates x-somes with a balanced number of flights in each x-some. For example, a balanced foursome would produce an A,B,C,D in each foursome, while trying to maintain equal team handicaps.

Flighted x-somes: Calculates x-somes with the same flight in each x-some. For example, a flighted foursome would try to produce an A,A,A,A in each foursome while trying to maintain equal teams. The next set of foursomes would be B,B,B,B, etc.

Mixed Flighted x-somes: Calculates x-somes with the mixed flights in each x-some. For example, a mixed foursome would try to produce an A,A,C,C in each foursome and B,B,D,D in each foursome. Or A,A,B,B and C,C,D,D, etc...

Play with all: Calculates x-somes, making sure each golfer plays with a different set of golfers for each successive event. Tournament Manager calculates up to 24 events, or until each golfer has played with every other golfer. For example, if you had a group of 20 golfers that you wanted to pair into twosomes, Tournament Manager will calculate 19 events in which every golfer plays with every other golfer.

Random Pairings: Calculates completely random x-somes, without regard to any criteria (handicaps, flights, gender, carts, etc.).

- Each successive trial assures the same golfers do not play together! No repeats is guaranteed.
- Powerful manual pairing options. Tournament Manager allows you to lock any number of golfers on the same team. This allows you to manually build some teams (or parts of teams) and lets Tournament Manager automatically pair the rest.

"Prior to using the Handicap System and Tournament Manager programs, we had a much more expensive program. These programs are so much easier to use, more versatile, and more satisfying in all respects. We have considered going online with a service and rejected it because these programs give us immediate and full control over our local tournaments, which is impossible with an outside service. The cost of these programs is very reasonable and you won't find a better Company to work with anywhere."

"Our organization is comprised of about 40 members (all aged 60+), many of whom belong to private or semi-private courses and thus maintain RCGA handicaps. Skill levels vary greatly, with some players having single digit handicaps and some with extremely high handicaps because we don't place a cap on the number. Since we choose not to adjust actual scores (a ten is a ten), this system allows us to monitor player handicaps specifically as they relate to our group. The system also allows us to easily organize pairings & foursomes for all of our outings."

Post Information onto Your Own Website

Option to post your tournament information onto the web. Tournament Manager's built-in Website Designer provides a turnkey solution for placing all your organization's pertinent information on the web. There are no usernames or passwords to remember, no special software to load, no server to setup. Publishing your organization's website is very easy and completely automatic.

Put any information that you would usually print onto your own group's website. The players love it because all the tournament information is accessible on the Internet. All members have online access to reports, tournament schedules, signup sheets, pairings, individual standings, team standings, game results, tee times, handicapping reports, rules & documents, photos, emails, announcements, etc. Post whatever information you wish on your website.
